"Teaching can be a struggle but it is so powerful when the students really understand. Sometimes when I am teaching, I feel like I am a small burning candle desperately trying to light everyone's candle sticks. I plan out all different methods on how best to try and light others candles and will research for hours yet only light a few. But then, there are other times I teach and all of a sudden it's like 'BOOM' and I feel like I am standing centre stage with bright lights shining all around. Aaaaah!"

"Always be joyful then, in the Lord; I repeat, be joyful." Phil 4:4

Joy is only there if you accept it;

Joy can be found at any time of the day;

Joy can be anything you like or love.

I have told you this so my joy may be in you and that your joy may be complete."

John 16:22

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Dear Families

Thank you for all your involvement and support during this school term. One of the highlights has definitely been the Confirmation celebrations and I would like to acknowledge Fr Elver, Mrs McCabe and Mrs Rattray, the Parish Sacramental Team, parents, candidates, school choir and school staff who were instrumental in the Masses running so smoothly. It is a delight for us, as a school, to be part of such a cohesive and supportive parish environment. It has certainly been a busy term for our Liwara community with many school events that the students and parents have been involved with. The Feast of the Assumption of Mary, our two beautiful Confirmation Masses, another successful P&F fundraising event the 'Mega Raffle', as well as the Busy Bee in August. An extremely well attended Learning Journey, the Father's Day Breakfast and Father's Night, the amazing variety of Performing Arts items and our students involved in the One Big Voice extravaganza, as well as all our other regular occurrences. I would like to thank all community members who have been involved with these successful events and my wish for the holidays is that all families take the opportunity to enjoy the company of one another and to make time to rest and re-energise.

LEARNING JOURNEY: It was wonderful seeing so many families milling around the school on Tuesday evening. I thank you all for your support as the students and staff have been working tirelessly to showcase all the students' admirable achievements. The displays throughout the school were all so informative, inviting and student focussed and I thank the staff for their amazing efforts in making sure the classrooms looked even more impressive! The whole school focus using the text 'Six Feet Long and Three Feet Wide' was definitely my highlight as every child from Kindy to Year Six was represented amongst the wonderful array of activities and ideas. The 'buzz' around the school was friendly and supportive and the teachers enjoyed the experience of sharing their class learning journeys with you. I proudly acknowledge the work of our students and staff and thank them for their enthusiasm and commitment.

"On behalf of the Bishops of Western Australia I am pleased to announce the appointment of Dr Debra Sayce to the position of Executive Director of Catholic Education in Western Australia.

Contd.

She was recently appointed to the Executive Committee of the Plenary Council 2020.

Debra has a Bachelor of Physical Education; Diploma of Education; Master of Education in Religious Studies and a Doctor of Education. I take this opportunity to congratulate and welcome Debra Sayce as our new Executive Director. She will take up this appointment on 1 January 2019."

ATHLETICS CARNIVAL: Thank you to Mrs Paula Dawe, students, staff and parents for all that was done in preparation for the exciting event on Wednesday 12 September. The weather was cloudy but perfect for a day outdoors, the events ran like clockwork, the students' participation was exemplary, as always, and the parent support was once again superb. A special thank you to our hardworking P&F who organised the Subway lunches to feed our ravenous participants, families and staff. The build up to the carnival, as always was huge, and the students had a fantastic day supporting their team mates and proudly achieving their personal best. Thank you, to everyone who played a part in the successful 2018 faction carnival.

PRE KINDY & KINDY DAYS 2019 As we are now offering two full days of Pre Kindy (3 Year Old) on a Wednesday and Friday, the Friday usually beginning part way through the year, we will be keeping our Kindy (4 Year Old) days as they currently are—Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Would you know what you'd do in a situation where your child's friend disclosed information about abuse? Have you ever considered what to say in the case of another child showing yours pornography?

Often parents don't want to think about dealing with a situation like this. It's scary and they hope it won't ever happen to their child.

What would you do?

Are you confused about how to teach your children to be wary of potential harm, without overloading them with fear, wrapping them in cotton wool, or giving them so much information that their innocence is damaged? Would you know what tried and true steps to take in the event a situation occurred?

BOOK WEEK COMPETITION PRIZE FOR LIWARA!

As part of our Book Week 2018 celebrations, Mrs Margetic captured the theme "Find Your Treasure" by creating a fabulous display in the Library. The display included a pirate ship, flag, treasure chest and most importantly books! We entered photos of our display into the Independent Education Union's Book Week Competition. Liwara was awarded the Crichton Award for New Illustrators and we won a collection of books from this year's Children's Book Council of Australia Shortlisted Books. Well done Mrs Margetic and everyone who helped with our wonderful Library display. Our new books will be on the shelves soon for children to read, enjoy and take home.

With the school holidays upon us why not consider starting a worm farm at home.

Worm farms are an efficient way to reduce household waste and produce nutrient-rich fertilizer for the garden. Worms can consume and compact waste so well that they can reduce the volume of organic matter by 95 per cent.

Worm farms can come in all shapes and sizes, from small self-contained plastic containers to raised garden beds. The key to a successful worm farm is the position. The internet provides a wealth of information about setting up a worm farm. Below are 2 companies that provide worms. Bunnings also sells worms.

How to better advocate for your child on the autism Spectrum by Kate Johnson

When you think about advocacy for a child on the autism spectrum, what springs to mind? Is it the lobbying on the television by interest groups? Is it signing a thought-provoking petition online? Is it a carer trying to push for support at school when life is spiralling out of control for their child? Or is it working with a therapist to try and access a new school/service?

It is all those things and so much more.

If you have a child or adolescent on the autism spectrum, advocacy is something that you may be very experienced in. However, even if you are new to this situation, being able to be effective as an advocate in meetings is essential when supporting your child at school.

Advocacy can be incredibly draining. Depending on the meeting, there may be instances where you hear about every one of your child's challenges while on the inside you are yelling, "But you can't see all the good things!" You may be called in to help make decisions on reduced attendance or to hear the outcome of funding news. At secondary school, the need to communicate with each teacher individually often intensifies as they may not have the same communication system as existed at primary school. This requires additional advocacy efforts.

So, what can you do to advocate well for your child or adolescent in a meeting situation?

Understand the purpose of the meeting. If it is not clear, ask the reason for the meeting at the time it is called. It can be incredibly hard to think logically and recall information when surprised or shocked. Emotions can make us feel so unsure or overwhelmed that we struggle to respond well. By knowing the purpose of a meeting in advance, you can potentially think through some ideas, plan and problem solve in advance.

Know your rights. This is a big one. It is good to be clear, before you enter a meeting, what support you can ask for or what the processes are when a major decision is made. If your adolescent has had their school hours reduced, is there a plan to reintroduce those hours and a timeline for that? Other carers who have had similar experiences may be able to assist by sharing their experiences. The education department in your state will have a document outlining their program for students with disabilities. Download, print and read this thoroughly. If you have therapists supporting your child or teen, you could ask them for advice.

Understand your value. Your voice matters, so don't see yourself as 'just the carer or parent'. You are not 'just' a parent/carer but an important part of your child's village of support. You see the impact of positive strategies and some that need to be assessed. As the carer, you support your child in various environments and can describe approaches that may work well, are supportive and provide for sensory regulation.

Be proactive and attend with ideas. When you know the purpose of a meeting, you can come armed with ideas and strategies to discuss. Is your adolescent's anxiety overwhelming them? Could they benefit from regular sensory or movement breaks using a discrete card so as not to draw unwanted attention? Does the work need to be broken up into sections? Does your child need support to navigate the playground or could the school look at establishing a lunch time club or activity group? Your ideas are valuable and deserve to be heard.

Take a support person. Sometimes, having a support person in a meeting can change the dynamic, especially if there are additional barriers to receiving support. This may be a partner, a supportive friend, an advocate or your therapist – anyone who could add value to the meeting.

Take notes. After the meeting you might need to think about the approach you will take to further advocacy. You may need to engage additional therapy for your child or adolescent. You may need to seek advice and support if you feel something seems a bit 'off' and is not in line with the responses you receive at home. Having notes to refer to at a later stage can help trigger your memory, make follow up calls and track progress.

You may have had an amazing meeting experience, or it could have rocked you to the core. Regardless of how you go in a meeting, it can emotionally drain you. There is something to be said for the therapeutic cry in the car to release emotion. Give yourself space to process and feel it all. Let it out and chat to a supportive and understanding friend. Be kind to yourself!

For more ideas on advocating well for your child, you may like to check out our new resource from Spectrum Journeys called 'The Advocacy Project – a parent's guide to becoming their child's best advocate' and learn from the women who have shared their advocacy lessons and triumphs.

Kate is the Founder and Director of Spectrum Journeys Inc, a not for profit Autism service that equips and empowers families and educators as they support children on the Autism Spectrum to flourish. Kate leads an amazing team in the Outer East of Melbourne and focuses on practical Autism education as well as community projects and supporting carers. Kate is married to Joel and they have 4 beautiful children (their eldest being on the Autism Spectrum).

LIWARA NETBALL CLUB

On Friday 14th September, the Liwara Netball Club celebrated the end of the Winter 2018 season with a trophy night and disco, in the Ahern Centre. The 84 players seemed to have a fabulous time getting their groove on. We thanked the 26 volunteer coaches, managers and committee who helped to make it all possible!

We also farewelled three of our long time committee and club members, Shannon Lees, our treasurer, Jen Herbert, our Uniform Coordinator, and Jen Beaman, our President. These three amazing ladies have given generously of their time, knowledge and energy to help the club run successfully.

To cap the season off, our Under 12s Team 1 fought through two finals to lock in a place in the Grand Final last Saturday. They came runners up to a worthy winner. Thank you to the huge crowd who came down to cheer them on! Their silver medals were a wonderful reward for their determination.

Good luck to all our teams playing in Spring and see you in 2019!

Last Sunday night 24 of us gathered together for a great time of fun and sharing faith.

Lynn shared stories about the people in her life whom she felt impacted the world around her and left her a legacy to follow. This legacy is one where she is inspired to follow Christ not only in words but in actions too. We were challenged to think about our impact and legacy on this world that we would like to have.

Next week will be our final talk on our Impact the World series.
